Your DAAD: Graduates

Graduate students in social sciences, hard sciences, or in professional areas such as law, business, and medicine have particular needs for their research and study in Germany. We can help you master the German language, complete a research project in Germany, or expand your education with a stay at a German university. See the fellowship opportunities below.

Earn a Master's or PhD in Germany

As part of the growing area of "international degree programs", German institutions are increasingly offering Master's and PhD courses--many of which are entirely or partially in English. Tuition fees are generally lower than those in the USA or Canada (and are usually waived for DAAD grantees). Fields as diverse as computer science and engineering to European studies or intellectual property can all be found in the international degree course database here.

Other funding opportunities

Can't find a scholarship or grant on these pages that fits your needs? Visit the DAAD Funding Guide, a searchable databank of scholarships offered both by DAAD and other selected organisations.
