Five good reasons for studying in Germany:

First class service for international students

German universities offer an all-round service to ensure that you can quickly settle into your studies and everyday life in Germany.

Wide choice of degree programs

There is practically nothing that you cannot study in Germany. Also, Germany has a comprehensive system of scholarships and grants, including special support for international students.

Excellence in research and teaching

German universities attach great importance to basic research.

Close links between theory and practice

The success of world-class technology "Made in Germany" shows how basic research and applications work together as a real team.

Strong international focus

The work done by German universities knows no geographical borders and German degrees are recognized all over the world.

" DAAD is the world's largest organization for academic exchange and scientific cooperative work, and is held in very high regard internationally... DAAD is working closely with developing nations, above all those in Africa and Asia, where it can help people to help themselves by mutually establishing academic structures and by training educators. "
